Continued

- 2768 Artificial Intelligence—Enhanced Electrocardiogram for the Early Detection of Cardiac Amyloidosis
 Martha Grogan, Francisco Lopez-Jimenez, Michal Cohen-Shelly, Angela Dispenzieri, Zachi I. Attia, Omar F. Abou Ezzedine, Grace Lin, Suraj Kapa, Daniel D. Borgeson, Paul A. Friedman, and Dennis H. Murphree Jr.
 An artificial intelligence–driven ECG model effectively detects cardiac amyloidosis and may promote early diagnosis of this life-threatening disease.
- 2779 In-Hospital Complications in Pregnant Women With Current or Historical Cancer Diagnoses
 Pensée Wu, Kelvin P. Jordan, Carolyn A. Chew-Graham, Mohamed O. Mohamed, Ana Barac, Gina P. Lundberg, Lucy C. Chappell, Erin D. Michos, Angela H.E.M. Maas, and Mamas A. Mamas
 Hematologic cancer was the most common cancer type and associated with worse mortality as well as more in-hospital complications. Clinicians should communicate the risks of multisystem complications to these complex patients.
- 2793 Bleeding in Patients With Gastrointestinal Cancer Compared With Nongastrointestinal Cancer Treated With Apixaban, Rivaroxaban, or Enoxaparin for Acute Venous Thromboembolism
 Damon E. Houghton, Danielle T. Vlazny, Ana I. Casanegra, Nichole Brunton, David A. Froehling, Ryan A. Meverden, David O. Hodge, Lisa G. Peterson, Robert D. McBane, and Waldemar E. Wysokinski
 Patients with GI cancer do not have a higher rate of major bleeding and clinically relevant nonmajor bleeding compared with patients with non-GI cancers.
- 2806 Research Involving Participants With Impaired Consent Capacity: An Examination of Methods to Determine Capacity to Consent
 Maria I. Lapid, Bart L. Clarke, Jacqueline B. Ho, Yves Ouellette, Tamyra L. Armbrust, and R. Scott Wright
 In clinical practice, any suspected impairment in cognitive functioning should prompt clinicians to conduct more comprehensive assessments, use formal tools to aid in the assessment, or repeat reassessment of cognitive functioning as appropriate.
- 2823 Incidence of Clinically Relevant Thyroid Cancers Remains Stable for Almost a Century: A Population-Based Study
 Natalia Genere, Omar M. El Kawkgi, Rachel E. Giblon, Salvatore Vaccarella, John C. Morris, Ian D. Hay, and Juan P. Brito
 These findings emphasize continued overdiagnosis of thyroid cancers of limited clinical relevance and highlight this issue particularly in younger adults.
- 2831 DXA Versus Clinical Measures of Adiposity as Predictors of Cardiometabolic Diseases and All-Cause Mortality in Postmenopausal Women
 Deepika R. Laddu, FeiFei Qin, Haley Hedlin, Marcia L. Stefanick, JoAnn E. Manson, Oleg Zaslavsky, Charles Eaton, Lisa Warsinger Martin, Thomas Rohan, and Themistocles L. Assimes
 Dual-energy x-ray absorptiometry–derived estimates of abdominal adiposity in postmenopausal women may allow for substantially improved risk prediction of diabetes over standard clinical risk models.
- 2843 Corticosteroid Use and Risk of Herpes Zoster in a Population-Based Cohort
 Jiahui Qian, Emily Banks, Kristine Macartney, Anita Elizabeth Heywood, Marissa Nichole Lassere, and Bette Liu
 Given the significant morbidity from zoster, particularly in older adults, these findings support judicious prescribing of corticosteroids, including using as low a dose and as short a course as possible.
