Original Articles

- 454 The Female-Predominant Persistent Immune Dysregulation of the Post-COVID Syndrome
Ravindra Ganesh, Stephanie L. Grach, Aditya K. Ghosh, Dennis M. Bierle, Bradley R. Salonen, Nerissa M. Collins, Avni Y. Joshi, Neal D. Boeder Jr., Christopher V. Anstine, Michael R. Mueller, Elizabeth C. Wight, Ivana T. Croghan, Andrew D. Badley, Rickey E. Carter, and Ryan T. Hurt
 Ongoing fatigue is the most common phenotype in women, and dyspnea the most common in men. Women are more likely than men to have an elevated IL-6.
- 465 Human Immunodeficiency Virus Infection and Variation in Heart Failure Risk by Age, Sex, and Ethnicity: The HIV HEART Study
Alan S. Go, Kristi Reynolds, Harshith R. Avula, William J. Towner, Rulin C. Hechter, Michael A. Horberg, Suma Vupputuri, Thomas K. Leong, Wendy A. Leyden, Teresa N. Harrison, Keane K. Lee, Sue Hee Sung, and Michael J. Silverberg
 HIV infection increased the risk of heart failure, which varied by demographic characteristics and was not primarily mediated through atherosclerotic disease pathways or differential use of cardiopreventive medications.
- 480 The Mortality Index for Alcohol-Associated Hepatitis: A Novel Prognostic Score
Camille A. Kezer, Seth M. Buryska, Joseph C. Ahn, William S. Harmsen, Winston Dunn, Ashwani K. Singal, Juan P. Arab, Luis A. Díaz, Jorge Arnold, Patrick S. Kamath, Vijay H. Shah, and Douglas A. Simonetto
 The Mortality Index for Alcohol-Associated Hepatitis is as accurate as current prognostication models in identifying patients with alcohol-associated hepatitis at high risk of short-term mortality.
- 491 Changes in Burnout and Satisfaction With Work-Life Integration in Physicians and the General US Working Population Between 2011 and 2020
Tait D. Shanafelt, Colin P. West, Christine Sinsky, Mickey Trockel, Michael Tutty, Hanhan Wang, Lindsey E. Carlsare, and Lotte N. Dyrbye
 Occupational burnout and satisfaction with work-life integration have improved among US physicians between 2017 and 2020; however, physicians remain at increased risk relative to the US workforce.
- 507 Sex and Race Disparities in Hypertrophic Cardiomyopathy: Unequal Implantable Cardioverter-Defibrillator Use During Hospitalization
Sri Harsha Patlolla, Hartzell V. Schaff, Rick A. Nishimura, Jeffrey B. Geske, Shannon M. Dunlay, and Steve R. Ommen
 Among hypertrophic cardiomyopathy hospitalizations, implantable cardioverter-defibrillator devices are underused in women and racial minorities, independent of demographics, hospital characteristics, and comorbidities.
- 519 The Lifestyle-Related Cardiovascular Risk Is Modified by Sleep Patterns
Qiyong Song, Mengying Wang, Tao Zhou, Dianjianyi Sun, Hao Ma, Xiang Li, Yoriko Heianza, and Lu Qi
 Adherence to a healthy sleep pattern may attenuate the cardiovascular disease risk associated with an unfavorable lifestyle.
- 531 Cardioslective Versus Nonselective β -Blockers After Myocardial Infarction in Adults With Chronic Obstructive Pulmonary Disease
Chang-Min Chung, Ming-Shyan Lin, Shih-Tai Chang, Po-Chang Wang, Teng-Yao Yang, and Yu-Sheng Lin
 Cardioslective β -blocker treatment during hospitalization and continuing after discharge appears to be superior to nonselective β -blocker treatment in patients with COPD after myocardial infarction.
- 547 Autoimmune/Paraneoplastic Encephalitis Antibody Biomarkers: Frequency, Age, and Sex Associations
Amy Kunchok, Andrew McKeon, Anastasia Zekeridou, Eoin P. Flanagan, Divyanshu Dubey, Vanda A. Lennon, Christopher J. Klein, John R. Mills, and Sean J. Pittock
 Age and sex associations may suggest paraneoplastic, endocrinologic, or aging influences on neurologic autoimmunity.

- 560 Risk of an Opioid-Related Emergency Department Visit or Hospitalization Among Older Breast, Colorectal, Lung, and Prostate Cancer Survivors
Derrick C. Gibson, Mukaila A. Raji, Holly M. Holmes, Jacques G. Baillargeon, and Yong-Fang Kuo
Guidelines and policies should promote nonopioid pain management approaches, especially to opioid non-naïve older adults, a population at high risk for an opioid-related ED visit or hospitalization.
