Editorials

- 401 What Ever Happened to Cardioprotection With β -Blockers?
Franz H. Messerli, Thomas Suter, and Sripal Bangalore
- 404 Correlation of Online Physician Reviews and Overall Patient Satisfaction
Bradley C. Leibovich
- 406 Managing the Hypoactive Sexual Desire Disorder in Women
Vesna D. Garovic, Amy Williams, and Karl A. Nath

Original Articles

- 409 Risk of All-Cause Mortality in Diabetic Patients Taking β -Blockers
Tetsuro Tsujimoto, Hiroshi Kajio, Martin F. Shapiro, and Takehiro Sugiyama
In this study using nationally representative data, all-cause mortality was significantly higher in diabetic participants taking β -blockers than in those not taking β -blockers.
- 419 Association of Resistance Exercise With the Incidence of Hypercholesterolemia in Men
Esmée A. Bakker, Duck-chul Lee, Xuemei Sui, Thijs M.H. Eijsvogels, Francisco B. Ortega, I-Min Lee, Carl J. Lavie, and Steven N. Blair
Less than 1 hour per week of resistance exercise, independent of aerobic exercise, is associated with a significantly lower risk of development of hypercholesterolemia in men.
- 429 Factors Associated With Positive Margins in Women Undergoing Breast Conservation Surgery
Brittany L. Murphy, Judy C. Boughey, Michael G. Keeney, Amy E. Glasgow, Jennifer M. Racz, Gary L. Keeney, and Elizabeth B. Habermann
Identification of factors associated with the need for re-excision/reoperation may inform the practice of breast conservation surgery and minimize reoperation rates.
- 436 Routine Invasive Versus Selective Invasive Strategy in Elderly Patients Older Than 75 Years With Non-ST-Segment Elevation Acute Coronary Syndrome: A Systematic Review and Meta-Analysis
Aakash Garg, Lohit Garg, Manyoo Agarwal, Amit Rout, Hitesh Raheja, Sahil Agrawal, Sunil V. Rao, and Marc Cohen
Routine invasive strategy is safe and effective for stable non-ST-segment elevation acute coronary syndrome, even among very elderly patients. This may result in fewer cardiac rehospitalizations and need for urgent revascularization.

The composite cover image highlights 3 salient themes: the wide-ranging effects of human biomedical research and discovery in driving progress in understanding and treating human disease (symbolized, on the left, by a neuron and its ramifying dendrites and axons); state-of-the-art investigation in evaluating human disease (symbolized, in the middle, by a positron emission tomographic image of the brain); and the indispensability of teamwork and the coalescence of expertise in providing the best possible care for patients (symbolized, on the right, by a collaborating surgical/interventional team).
